FREEDOM AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT PROJECT PROGRESS REPORT

July 2024 Update

WHAT'S NEW?

Freedom ASD, Bray Architects, and CD Smith have been making great progress over the past month with both the overall design of the project and continued engagement with staff. Although there have been many moving pieces of the project, the area with the most changes has been the tech ed portion of the addition. The tech ed team was able to tour spaces at Seymour Community Schools, Neenah Joint School District, and Fox Valley Tech in Appleton to learn more about what other programs in the area are doing with their tech ed spaces. The tours were a great opportunity to gather inspiration for the tech ed space in Freedom.

PLANNING & DESIGN UPDATE

As Freedom ASD prepares for school to start in less than a month, the design team is taking the opportunity to continue to meet with staff as they return. It is important to the overall design of this project that information is gathered from administration, teachers, and staff. These meetings focus in on both macro level planning, such as layout, and micro level planning, like details of what cabinets look like, where power is placed, and how the function of the space is intended.

NEXT STEPS

- » Continued user group/staff meetings
- » Engineering coordination
- » Working through interior design concepts
- » Interior finish discussions
